

LA Excelsior Aggressive Portfolio

As at 31 December 2011

Portfolio objective

The Portfolio aims to produce a risk/return profile consistent with that required by an aggressive investor. Aggressive investors are long-term investors who want high capital growth. Substantial year-to-year fluctuations in value are acceptable in exchange for a potentially high long-term return.

Who should invest in this portfolio

This portfolio is suited to the investor who:

- wants to achieve real returns of 4.5% p.a. over their investment horizon after the deduction of tax but before any Liberty Life charges and fees have been deducted
- has an investment horizon of at least 10 years
- is prepared to accept significant fluctuations in returns from year to year

Risk profile

No adjustment has been made to the above risk profile for the guaranteed version of the portfolio. If guarantee is selected on the portfolio, then the risk profile will be lower, provided the investor remains in the guaranteed portfolio for the duration of its guaranteed term.

What return is this portfolio designed to achieve?

Expected return*	CPI + 4.5%
Investment horizon	10 years

The Consumer Price Index (CPI) measures the increase in the price of the basket of goods an average family would buy over a specified period of time.

* Expected return is after the deduction of tax but before any Liberty Life charges and fees have been deducted.

Quarterly commentary (3rd quarter)

Equity performance has improved substantially over the past 12 months as increased risk aversion resulted in many of the high beta stocks retreating while the manager maintained a prudent stock selection strategy. Over the quarter, the overweight positions in BTI, NewGold and Food & Beverages, as well as underweight in Basic Resources and Retail, contributed to outperformance. The sectors detracting from quarterly performance were overweights in Industrial Goods & Services, Healthcare and underweights in Financial Services and Insurance. During the quarter, returns on bonds were largely driven by movements in the yield curve, with the long-end underperforming the other sectors. Exposure to credit has also contributed to the longer-term bond performance.

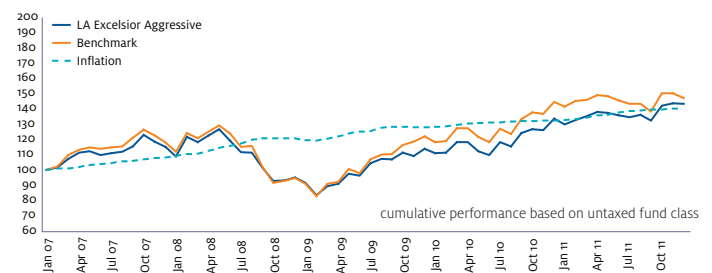

During the third quarter of 2011, the weighting in the long end of the yield curve was increased. Cash holdings were reduced to fund the purchase of term assets. Credit bonds holdings were retained at an overweight compared to the benchmark.

The modified duration was increased from 5.5 years to 6.1 years, which is marginally above the benchmark as domestic bond yields declined.

The SARB MPC left rates unchanged in both meetings during the quarter, changing their focus from being inflation oriented to being much more concerned about domestic growth and the deteriorating growth outlook from developed markets.

As stated, a tactical shift was implemented to lengthen duration. The long-term outlook for bonds does, however, remain volatile.
