Quarterly commentary (3rd quarter)

Malcolm Holmes
STANLIB Multi-Manager

Our fear of a market related de-rating on the back of a deteriorating global growth picture came to fruition in Q3. Not only was US growth revised downwards, but in a surprising move Standard and Poor's downgraded the fiscal prospects of the US and a lack of political leadership in Europe threatened to convert a spiraling European Debt crisis into a global recession. The whirlwind of economic noise created during the quarter contributed to significant uncertainty and weakness in risk assets. The depreciation of the rand and other EM currencies relative to the Dollar, the collapse in commodity prices, the drop in the US 10 year Treasury yield to below 2% and ultimately the 5.8% fall in the JSE All Share index were all indicative of this lack of confidence.

Albeit that the Fund outperformed the market for the quarter, it underperformed the peers primarily because we have a more sanguine view of the current economic environment (we are looking through the noise) and are positioned to benefit from continued corporate earnings growth (+15% over next 12 months) and attractive valuations (11x forward PE). On an earnings yield of 7.5%, we also find equities attractive relative to bonds. Signs of improved global environment are starting to emerge in the growth, employment and tax receipt statistics in the US and together with a rebound in Japan we are expecting 2nd half global growth to be better than the 1st half. We suspect that greater clarity on a more defined solution to the European debt crisis will emerge in the 4th quarter and should this transpire, then the overweight position in resources in the Fund will be well rewarded. This position is coming primarily from Polaris, although we note with interest that many equity managers in South Africa are finding this part of the market attractive on valuation grounds.

At a manager level, ABSA protected well, benefiting from a higher exposure to interest rate sensitive investments, whilst OMIGSA struggled given their greater exposure to economic sensitive assets like Anglos, Lonmin and Arcelor Mittal. Looking forward, and assuming our view on the world transpires, then we believe the overall portfolio is well positioned for a re-rating of equities.
